Summary

Hello World, I'm Pourya Dehghan a passionate full stack developer with a background of petrochemical engineering education and design. My favorite part of coding is designing a mobile app or website, and I have a keen eye for design. The most exiting moment for me is debugging and squashing bugs, especially when I can use the mathematic and algorithmic backgrounds that I learned in university. My previous work in design and photography industry helps me figure out where things belong online; I want to make beautiful user experiences so that anyone can enjoy the web. I'm eager to make the leap into full stack and continue refining my skills with the right company and team.
